

Sherman County School District "Builds" Opportunities for Student Success

WORKING TOGETHER TO PUT STUDENT SUCCESS FIRST

It is extremely exciting to report that Food Services Manager Ree Ella von Borstel and her staff started serving meals in our beautiful new kitchen yesterday. The students and staff were very impressed with the layout and new service line. This new kitchen facility is a tremendous upgrade and will better serve students and staff for many years to come. All food and supplies will be stored and prepared in this space and it will eliminate numerous trips back and forth to retrieve frozen and refrigerated items at other district locations.

With the new kitchen now finished, this concludes the majority of work on Phase 1 (James Weir Agricultural Science and Technology Center and the new kitchen). Phase 2 will now be the focus of the work to be completed.

As you can see from the two pictures to the left, the former Agricultural Building demolition is nearing completion. This will make way for further progress on foundations for Phase 2. Framing is set to begin this week on the construction of the new elementary wing.
